

Digital Product Delivery Policy

We consider digitally delivered goods to be information or content that you can download from our website, access via web browser, or receive by email. Users who purchase our online course will receive an email verifying a successful purchase. Users can login to their purchased course using the user name and password they created during the purchase process.

"Delivery" means the access to our online program through internet web browser. At present we have only one mode of delivery – internet browser. Currently there are no products that require downloading.

Online digital delivery of content is through internet browser only i.e. Safari, Chrome, Firefox, etc. We are not responsible for your internet connection quality or inability to access to the course through web browser.
